Alliant Energy Foundation Awards $2,500 Grant To FRC For Crisis Care Program Services

On Wednesday, December 11, Mason Adams, Alliant Energy Key Account Manager from Ames and Andy Krieger, Alliant Energy Supervisor of Customer Operations for Perry, Jefferson, and Carroll, presented a check for $2,500 to Family Resource Center for expansion of its Crisis Program, focused on helping underserved and special needs families.

Adams stated, "The Alliant Energy Foundation is proud to present this $2,500 in grant funding to FRC for expansion of their vital Crisis Care Program services. FRC works tirelessly to minister to underserved families, and families who have members with special needs. Our Foundation focuses on programs that have a significant aim at helping families, and we support FRC's mission and vision towards this goal."

Sherry Greteman, FRC's Marketing and Development Director, applied for the grant under the Alliant Energy Foundation's Community Grants Program. Greteman said, "The Alliant Energy Foundation's Community Grants Program focuses on three categories: Helping Families, Education, and the Environment. We applied for this grant under the Helping Families category, and we are very pleased that the Alliant Energy Foundation recognizes the value of FRC expanding one of its most fundamental services to include more families in our service area."

"It is very humbling to be honored with a grant from a widely-respected corporation such as Alliant Energy," added Tim Nichols, FRC Executive Director. "We are very grateful to their Foundation for their confidence in Family Resource Center's commitment to our community and the surrounding communities."
